BLUE AND WHITE COLLAR WORK

A blue-collar job is one in which a person is often doing _____ labor, using their hands and body. A person that is a blue-collar worker may even work ______, but not always. Three examples of blue-collar jobs are: ____________________, ____________________ and ____________________.

A white-collar job is usually ______ and does NOT require _____ labor. Three examples of a white-collar job are ____________________ , ____________________ and ____________________.

A person with a professional degree, such as a bachelor’s or even master’s degree is most likely to have a _____ - collar job. However there are some professional degrees that lead to blue-collar jobs. An example of one is ________________.

A person working in a blue or white collar job doesn’t always have a ______ or ______ collar on their ______, it is just a phrase to describe the nature of their work.

Two advantages to blue-collar jobs are: ____________________ and ____________________. Two disadvantages to blue-collar jobs are: ____________________ and ____________________.

Two advantages to white-collar jobs are: ____________________ and ____________________. Two disadvantages to white-collar jobs are: ____________________ and ____________________.

____ - collar crime is becoming more popular with advances in technology and electronic banking. Two examples are____________________ and ____________________.

Would you prefer a blue or white-collar job? Why or why not? (min. 2 sentences)
Unions in the U.S.

1. What are two advantages of a Union?

2. What are two disadvantages of a Union?

3. What industries typically have Unions?

4. List 5 professions and/or companies that have Unions:
   -
   -
   -
   -
   -

5. Are the employees of Wal-Mart, Google, and Microsoft in a Union? Why or why not?

6. Do you think Unions are good or bad, why or why not?