

Ingredients include the following: plot, theme, setting, mood, characters.

“Take one plot where. . .” Tell what happens in the books and describe the setting.

“Mix in . . .”

Introduce/describe the characters of the book.

“Sprinkle with . . .”

Describe unique characteristics of the book.

“Fold gently . . .”

Describe the theme, or lesson learned, in the book.

“What do you get?”

Provide the book title, author, and a brief “review” of the book.

Here's What's Cooking

Take one plot where middle school student Paul Fisher struggles to discover the vicious truth about his too-good-to-be-true high school brother while solving the mystery behind his loss of eyesight as a child, all taking place in the hot, humid citrus-smelling world of Tangerine County, Florida.

Mix in harmful, deceiving Erik Fisher, brother to Paul, a pair of ever-too-trusting parents, Mr. & Mrs. Fisher, and a world of undeniably enamored fans of the infamous football star brother.

Sprinkle with smoking muck fires, disappearing osprey, fruit freezes, and death by electrocution.

Fold gently into a lesson about trusting one's instincts, never giving up, and believing that old cliché, “Don't judge a book by its cover.”

What do you get? Tangerine by Edward Bloor is the end result of this mind-boggling, keeps-you-guessing novel for anyone seeking a ride of adventure and shock.